

DECEMBER 7TH

December 7th is remembered by most people as the day Pearl Harbor, Hawaii was attacked by the nation of Japan. America's entrance into World War II is traced to this day that will, "Live in infamy" (President Franklin D. Roosevelt). This was the day that triggered a movement of an entire world in opposition to obvious evil. The people of that generation have been called by many (And rightly so), "The Greatest Generation." The world was made better in so many ways because decent people united and said, "Enough." May we always remember those sacrifices!

December 7th has another special significance for my family and me. On that day in 1948 my mother and father were united in marriage. If they had lived until this day, they would have been married for 66 years. Unfortunately my father passed away in 1985. My mother passed in 2013. After my father's death, my mother never remarried. She simply lived in the present while cherishing her precious memory.

My mom and dad not only gave life to my sister, brother and me, they gave us and everyone that knew them an image of what marriage is intended to be. They struggled with life issues and problems with one another just like all married couples today do. They had their happy moments and their sad moments. But never once did they contemplate giving up or ending their marriage because things were not perfect. They hung in there together, and with a lot of love, discipline and labor, they worked it out. I am so very blessed to have this precious memory that serves as a positive and powerful example.

Brothers and sisters, God intends for us to take marriage seriously (See Matthew 19:6). The vows we make to one another are rooted and grounded in heaven. The challenge is to resist satan when he comes along and tries to undermine the very foundation of who we are. It is my hope and prayer that our children will look back at our lives and say, "Thank you for your biblical and amazing example!" Take care.
